Summery: This is a fanfiction about Percy's life, and when his mother died when he was vary young, so he has to live with Gabe for his whole life.

WARNING: CHILD ABUSE NO YAI0.

Two days from now will be the end of a long summer after his mother died, not to mention the long line of abuse from his step-father Gabe. Percy was ready to go to school even though he promised Gabe he wouldn't tell the other kids what was happening at his "home".

"Not like they would care" Percy Jackson thought as he woke up. Like usual with a beer bottle being smashed over his head with Gabe yelling in his ear the second he opened his eyes.

"Buy me some more beer kid!"

So Percy like usual got up got dressed into his old green t-shirt and a pair of ripped up jeans, but right before he walked out of his bedroom door he walked back in and shut the door as quickly and quietly as possible and lifted up the loose floor bord and took out a small shoe box. He opened it and inside was a picture of him his mom and his "real" dad. He couldn't remember when it was taken because in the picture he was only a baby. Maybe just few months old, he didn't know. He carefully put the picture back and took out a necklace. His mom had given it to him. It was a wooden bead with the empire State building panted on it with acrylic paints. The Empire State building was a silver color while the hole of the bead was blue. There was a leather string that the one bead rested on with two magnetic clasps that held each end together.

Percy carefully unclasped the clasps and put it around his neck he never went a day without it . He then opened his door, but before he could get to the front door of his apartment. He had finally had enough he had gotten beer for Gabe for too long. Heck he even had to get a fake license saying that he was 21 but in reality he was only 5 short days from turning 11 years old.

Percy thought. He only has two more days left of summer vacation before school started up again. So Percy with all his rage slammed the door and sead.

"No, Gabe I will not get you and your poker buddies beer anymore. If that pisses you off then get it yourself! Because I'm not doing it for you!"

But as soon as Percy had sead that he with he hadn't.
